INITIATIVE
OF:

An invitation is extended to all key leaders and thought leaders to join a conversation and to lead a process for change that starts at the local church level. Your input is not only valuable but urgently required as we journey through this crisis into our shared future.

“Despite all our incredible children’s, youth and young adult programs, we have not been able to stop this mass exodus from our churches. We have not just lost one generation, we are losing several.” — David Sawler, Goodbye Generation (USA).

The core issue that needs to be addressed, which is at the heart of this disturbing global trend, is an urgent rethinking of what does it take to grow lifelong, active followers of Jesus.

A 3 year conversation with representatives from major Christian organisations and denominations, along with an exploration of reports, research and literature from across the Western world, has revealed some of the missing elements in this process of making disciples. The beginning of a response will see long term plans built around 10 key ‘pillars’ which will provide local faith communities with some focussed direction for reversing this trend.

These findings have been put together into a strategy that empowers local church leadership to be agents of change in this process. We believe the solutions lie within each gathered faith community. This is not a promotional tour for a new glossy resource kit or a 12 week course.

Continued positive feedback from presentations at major denominational and ecumenical events across the country has led to the shaping of these Capital City Conversations in every state in 2015.
